

A GUIDED PLANT MEDICINE JOURNEY

The Buddha Villa Retreat.

Six days. Twelve guests. Three ceremonies. One private villa under the Twelve Apostles. A held container for the deepest work a person can do.

Love · Happiness · Freedom

CAPE TOWN, SOUTH AFRICA

WHY THIS EXISTS

Most people never get a week to do the real work.

The Buddha Villa Retreat is the Foundation's deepest offering. A six-day residential built around plant medicine ceremony, held inside a framework of preparation, teaching, and integration.

It is not a holiday. It is not a workshop. It is a contained, supported journey through the layers most people spend a lifetime avoiding. The medicine opens the door. The framework makes sure you can walk through it, and walk back.

The container holds three things:

the preparation before you arrive, the ceremony work across six days, and the integration that carries it into the life you go back to.

THE SETTING

A villa briefed for one purpose.

THE BUDDHA VILLA

The Atlantic on one side. The mountains on the other.

A private villa set against the Twelve Apostles in Camps Bay, Cape Town. Communal spaces, private rooms, outdoor decks, a pool that opens onto the ocean. The villa is fully briefed and held: no friction, no logistics, nothing to manage.

Guests arrive and the only thing asked of them is presence. Everything else, the space, the food, the rhythm, the safety, is already handled.

Feels like: a retreat home, not a hotel. Twelve people, one house, one shared week.

THE MEDICINE

The door, and what it asks of you.

Plant medicine is the centre of the retreat. It is also the most misunderstood part. Here is how the Foundation holds it.

THE APPROACH

Plant medicine is a doorway. Not a destination.

The Foundation treats plant medicine with the seriousness it deserves. It is not recreational. It is not a shortcut. It is a tool that, held properly, can dissolve the defences a person has spent decades building, and let them see what is underneath.

The medicine does the opening. The work is what you do with the door once it is open. That work happens in the teaching sessions, the fire circles, the silence, the integration. The ceremony is one part of a much larger container.

*"The medicine opens the door.
What you bring to it shapes what walks through."*

— CHENEY, FOUNDER

THE CONTAINER

How the space is held.

Plant medicine is only as safe as the container around it. The Foundation builds that container deliberately, in four layers.

01 Screening before acceptance

Every guest is screened for medical and psychological fit. Plant medicine is not right for everyone, and the Foundation says so when it isn't.

02 Experienced facilitation

Ceremonies are led by experienced practitioners. Guests are never alone with the experience. Support is present through every hour of every ceremony.

03 A small cohort

Twelve guests, no more. Small enough that every person is seen, held, and known by name through the week.

04 Framework before and after

Preparation in the weeks before. Integration in the weeks after. The ceremony sits inside a structure, never on its own.

03

THE JOURNEY

Six days, built as an arc.

LOVE · HAPPINESS · FREEDOM

SUNDAY THROUGH FRIDAY

THE SIX-DAY ARC

Three ceremonies, woven into a structure that builds.

SUNDAY Arrival Settling in. Purpose and spiritual alignment. The first night is about landing. ORIENTATION	MONDAY First ceremony Emotional intelligence by day. The first ceremony at night. The door opens. CEREMONY 01	TUESDAY Second ceremony Leadership and the inner work. The second ceremony goes further than the first. CEREMONY 02	WEDNESDAY Third ceremony The deepest day. The third ceremony, held with the most care. CEREMONY 03	THURSDAY Application Practical integration. The fire circle. Turning the work into a life. FIRE CIRCLE	FRIDAY Closing Closing circle and departure. Guests leave with an integration plan. DEPARTURE
---	--	--	---	---	--

The arc matters: ceremonies are not stacked back to back. Each is followed by a day of teaching and rest, so the body and mind can metabolise before the next.

A DAY IN THE RHYTHM

The hours between the ceremonies.

06:30

Sit before the day arrives.

Twenty minutes of stillness on the deck. No phones.

08:00

Yoga and movement.

Bodywork before the mind shows up.

10:00

Teaching, a pillar in depth.

Group work. One of the seven pillars, unpacked.

13:00

Long table lunch.

Food cooked at the villa. The community forms here.

15:00

A long walk, mostly in silence.

The morning's work settles.

19:00

Fire circle, or ceremony.

Depending on the day. The centre of the week.

On non-ceremony days, the rhythm is gentle on purpose. Rest is not a gap in the programme. It is part of the programme. The work needs space to land.

By the third day, most guests stop checking the time. The rhythm carries them. That is the point.

THE THREE CEREMONIES

Each one goes further than the last.

01 Monday — meeting yourself

The first ceremony is about contact. Most guests meet a version of themselves they have been avoiding. The facilitators hold steady. Nothing is forced.

02 Tuesday — moving through it

The second ceremony builds on the first. With the door already open, the work goes to what the first ceremony surfaced. This is often the hardest night, and the most important.

03 Wednesday — letting it settle

The third ceremony is held with the most care. It is less about opening and more about integration, about beginning to carry what was found back into the body.

Between every ceremony: a full day of teaching, rest, movement, and held conversation. The space between the ceremonies is where the medicine becomes meaning.

THE FRAMEWORK

The seven pillars hold the medicine work in place.

Ceremony without a framework is just an experience. The Foundation's seven pillars give the experience structure, language, and a path back into ordinary life.

- Purpose Knowing why you're here.
- Wellness The body is the room the work happens in.
- Communication Spoken, written, embodied.
- Meditation Ten quiet minutes, every day.
- Discipline The bridge between knowing and doing.
- Faith A relationship with what you can't see.
- Redemption Forgive yourself first.

Each teaching day maps to a pillar. By Friday, guests have a vocabulary for what the medicine showed them, and a structure for living it.

04

THE ARC BEYOND THE WEEK

*The retreat is six days.
The work is longer.*

LOVE · HAPPINESS · FREEDOM

PREPARATION · INTEGRATION · COMPANION

BEFORE YOU ARRIVE

Preparation begins weeks out.

What a guest brings to the ceremony shapes what the ceremony can do. So the work starts well before arrival. In the weeks leading up, guests are guided to slow down: eat lighter, sleep more, sit quietly, pay attention to what they are carrying.

The Foundation provides a structured preparation guide, and NAVID, the Foundation's companion, walks alongside each guest through the lead-up.

THE PREPARATION WORK

- Slow the body down. Lighter food, more sleep, less stimulation.
- Sit quietly with yourself, ten minutes a day.
- Notice what you are carrying in. Name it before you arrive.
- A structured guide, plus NAVID, in the weeks before.

Preparation is not optional. It is the first ceremony. The week at the villa simply continues what the preparation begins.

AFTER YOU LEAVE

Integration is where the lesson becomes a life.

INTEGRATION

The weeks after the villa.

Guests leave with an integration plan. Slow mornings, journaling, breathwork, walks, conversations. The ceremony opens the door. Integration walks you through it. This is where the real change holds or fades.

NAVID, THE COMPANION

A guide that remembers you.

Every guest gets access to NAVID, the Foundation's AI companion. Trained on the seven pillars and the rhythm of a retreat, NAVID holds the space between sessions, through preparation and long into integration.

The Foundation does not disappear on Friday. Integration support and NAVID carry the work for as long as the guest needs it.

WHO IT'S FOR

Twelve people ready to stop avoiding the work.

THIS IS FOR YOU IF

- You have done some inner work and hit a wall the usual tools can't move.
- You carry something old that you are finally ready to look at.
- You can give six days fully, with preparation before and integration after.
- You are willing to be held, not just to perform being fine.

THIS IS NOT FOR YOU IF

- You are looking for a holiday, an escape, or an experience to collect.
- You cannot commit to the preparation and integration around the week.
- Screening surfaces a medical or psychological reason it would not be safe.
- You want the door opened, but not the work of walking through it.

Every applicant is screened. Saying no to the wrong fit is part of how the Foundation keeps the container safe for the right one.

WHAT'S INCLUDED

One price. The whole container.

DURATION

6 days residential

CEREMONIES

3, fully held

COHORT

*12 guestsThe retreat fee covers everything inside the container:

private villa accommodation, all meals, three facilitated ceremonies, daily teaching and movement, the preparation guide, integration support, and NAVID access through the full arc.

Pricing is confirmed per cohort and shared on application. Scholarship and sliding-scale places are held for each retreat. The Foundation does not turn away the right person over money.

THE NEXT COHORT

If the door is open, walk through it.

Applications for the Buddha Villa Retreat open by cohort.
Every applicant is screened, every place is considered. The work is real. The container is built. The next step is yours.
